Q1.

Value education is the process of giving knowledge of the rules needed for an individual to live in peace and happiness in society. The purpose of value education is to help students develop a good personality through learning values that make a person's life more peaceful and joyful.

Purpose of values in life:

- To make the personality of an individual complete in physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual aspects.
- To develop good manners and a responsibility towards society.
- To develop a way of thinking and living in society.
- To develop a lot of important values like patience and honesty which make our life more pleasant.

Necessary of value education in today's world:

Today the world is advancing at a very rapid pace and with that, the traits of being helpful, kind, generous, and gratitude is fading simultaneously. People are becoming more and more greedy, selfish, and dishonest. So in this kind of a world, the importance of value education also increases. Value education enhances the social benefits of the person, which is really important for the development of an individual in a society.

Young people nowadays get addicted to bad habits like smoking, alcohol and are also getting lazy day by day and in this way they spoil their health and dreams. This mainly happens because of a low level of values in the youth. So that's why value education becomes a necessity nowadays.

Value education ensures individuals with high moral values are created. I believe that value education should be compulsory at all levels of education to embed values in the youth. So that's why value education becomes a necessity nowadays to create a society where there is love, compassion and affection, and gratitude in people.

Q2.

The two important relations in my life:-

1. My Parents
2. My Sister

My expectations from my parents are:

- Fulfill my basic needs like food, clothes, shelter.
- To provide me access to education.
- To provide me with all the stuff that I need for my education.
- To provide me with my day-to-day expenses.
- To stand by me in odd times.
- To support and guide me with my decisions.

My expectations from my sister:

- To guide me with technology and stuff as she is an engineer.
- To support and guide me with my decisions in my life and be my mentor.
- To be a person with whom I can share all my problems and secrets.

My Contribution to them:

As of now as I am not earning something so could now fulfill their expectations from the financial point of view but now also I help my parents in the routine work at home, like bringing essentials from the shop and managing the work out of the home.

I am also focusing on my studies and also learning a lot of new skills that will help me to be a successful person through which I can fulfill their aspirations.

Q3.

IIT's have an enormous brand value with their name. IIT's have great facilities and laboratories and clubs through which I can explore new domains and develop new skills that will help me to achieve my goals. IIT's also have a great alumni network

Expectations From IIT:

- A good friends group that motivates me always.
- Provide good knowledge of new skills.
- Provide great research opportunities.
- Provide helpful and motivating seniors to help me with my problems.
- Provide good sports facilities, gym and all indoor and outdoor equipments.
- Provide a nice library to study, and read a lot of good books.
- Provide a good hostel, food, water facilities, and security in college.

I am expecting that IIT do an all-around development of my personality which is really important for my interaction with society. IIT's are having a great alumni network who are well settled and leading a successful life.

Q5.

The world is growing at a very fast pace, also the competition in every field has been increasing simultaneously. Competition is everywhere in every field.

Competition is both good and bad. Good competition makes a person push his limits and try to match with his competitors. But in bad competition, a person tries to take ill methods to make his competitor perform bad. So good makes a person more hardworking, responsible, and disciplined.

My experience with a competitive environment has been really good. The competitive environment promotes and pushes a person to his/her own limit. A person in a competitive can achieve unexpected results. When a person sees his peers performing well he also gets a sense of competition and also tries to perform well.

My experience with the competitive environment:

- It helped me to achieve unexpected results.
- It helped me to keep doing my work even if I don't like it.
- It helped me to live a more disciplined life.
- It helped me to learn how hard work is done and how to be patient.
- It helped me to learn how to deal with failure.
- It helped me to learn about my capabilities and inabilities.
- It also aroused a sense of critical thinking.
- It helps us to understand ourselves more deeply as we spend most of the time with ourselves.
- It improves our decision-making ability.

The bad things about competition are:

- Heavy competition like in JEE and NEET in which there are lakhs of students are competing sometimes people get stressed out and also they can get some suicidal thoughts and also they get engaged in only studying and neglect their health.

- As the seats in IITs and NIT's are limited so the students who study but don't get selected should have some other option to continue after JEE.
- There shouldn't be a lot of pressure from society and parents towards competitive exams.

Q6.

Gratitude is the sense of appreciation and thankfulness for whatever one has. This sense of appreciation is spontaneously generated from within. Gratitude strengthens one's relationship with society as one has a sense of appreciation for whatever one has. It also keeps the bad competition away from one's life. Gratitude also makes a person more benevolent and content. For leading a life full of harmony, peace, and joy one should have gratitude for every person around. Ideally, a person should have gratitude towards both living and non-living but generally, we neglect the non-living things. A non-living thing can create a lot of value in one's life by saving his/her time so one should also have gratitude towards non-living things as well. There is no specific way in which one can depict his/her gratitude, but it is an emotion and our actions depict our values so if one will have gratitude for anyone his/her actions will automatically depict that.

The role of some persons in my life is;

1. My parents-My parents have also supported me in whatever I did, they always gave me as much freedom as possible in my decision. They stood by me whenever I needed their support. I have a special bond with my father, he is the most hardworking man I have ever seen. He always supports me and always takes my views in whatever decision he takes, in this way he makes me feel important. I recognize their contribution by giving my best towards JEE so that they can feel proud, and I am also working on myself to be successful for them. I am also having immense respect for them in my heart.
2. My sister-My elder sister has been my mentor for my whole life, she is like my best friend with whom I can share all things which I might not have shared with even my parents. She loves me so much but is also like a strict teacher as well, she also scolded me whenever I was wrong. So she contributed a lot to develop my personality. I recognize her contribution by calling her every day and also discussing whatever I experience every day. I am also like her best friend, she also discusses her decision with me. I always support her whenever she is facing any difficulty.

3. My Friends-My friends have always helped me to maintain a sense of competition and always motivated me. They always helped me in various phases of my life. So I believe that my friends have contributed a lot in my JEE journey. I help my friends whenever they need me.
4. Farmers-Farmers provide us with the most important thing that one needs in life, food. They also provide raw materials to an of industries. I help farmers by spreading awareness among them about the modern techniques of farming. I am also looking forward to develop a platform where they can learn modern techniques.

Q7.

Trust is the faith you have in someone that they will always remain loyal to you and doesn't hide anything from you. Trust is the basic building block of any relationship. Its presence helps in building good relationships as a person feels safer with you. If we trust someone then we believe that they are honest and sincere and will not deliberately do anything to harm us. Without trust, a relationship cannot last for a long time. The feeling of mutual trust is of utmost importance for a relationship to be strong. When someone gets hurt in a relationship trust helps to get over it and heals the relationship. Without trust, a relationship is like a ship without sails. Without trust, there is always a feeling of fear, unrest, and unreliability. I would like to share one of my incidents to highlight the importance of trust in a relationship. Once, while writing an exam, I realized that I had forgotten to bring a pencil. Hence, I turned around to ask my friend for a pencil. My invigilator saw that, and thought I was trying to cheat. Even though I repeatedly told her that all I was asking for a pencil, she did not believe me and took me to my class teacher. When she narrated this incident to my class teacher, Mam Ravinder, she calmly replied that she had complete trust in me that I could never resort to cheating, and that she believed that I was telling truth, even though she had not even witnessed the incident. She had complete trust in me. This incident moved me, and my respect and love for my class teacher increased even more. Hence, trust is very crucial in every relation.
